

When choosing the best DVD Packaging there is a large and varied range to select from which will give you the best possible alternatives. The cases are typically made from a number of plastics – ranging from CD sized cases to the larger size commonly associated with DVD packaging particularly when used to house films. Depending on your media genre you should take into account the ability to display or market the content effectively. For example film media DVD packaging will have a far greater attention seeking component to their covers than those of discs containing information particular to a corporate organization